

World Book Day

Today our children were busy celebrating World Book Day in a range of exciting ways. As usual, the school was divided into several mixed age groups with each group undertaking a fun task related to World Book Day. Some groups made bookmarks or retold stories whilst others created collages to show the storylines of famous books.

One group even made costumes from old materials and dressed up a classmate as a famous character – the Harry Potter costume was particularly effective!

Some pupils used the computers to create their own storybooks or information books whilst others made up stories of their own. Others made puppets of characters from a story.

There were even children writing and performing raps that retold famous stories, others were performing Red Riding Hood and the Three Little Pigs.

As ever, it was an exciting and enjoyable morning and a good way to practise literacy skills!
